Edition – Samuel Hahnemann

father of Homeopathy

Similia similibus curentur

Dr. Samuel Hahnemann (1755-1843), Chemist, Doctor of Medicine and Pharmacist, is considered the discoverer and founder of classical Homeopathy

The artistic Process

Almost all known images of Hahnemann differ greatly in morphology as well as expression. The reason is probably the tendency of artists at that time to idealize the subject at the cost of a realistic portrait. This is clearly shown by the only known photographic portrait of Samuel Hahnemann – a daguerrotype dated 1841, when photography was in its infancy. Through a series of studies, the artist Katalin Giesswein took up the task to find his "real" face. In her sculptures his face becomes alive, his character traits, especially his steadfastness, openness, ability for clear thought, concentration and empathy, are expressed.

In this way several sculptures of Hahnemann picturing various stages of his life have been created.

Sculpture with Katalin Giesswein

The sculptor, artist and educator Katalin Giesswein was born in Hungary in 1960. She lives and works in Hamburg, Germany. Her studio NEW VIEWPOINT is located near the river Alster in the former college of art. Here she creates her own pieces as well as commissions. Participants in her seminars in classical portrait technique work with clay, deepening their ability to recognize the true being of a person, gaining new insights - a new point of view.

If you would like to commission a bust of a historical or contemporary person of your choice, would like to attend a seminar, or would like to know more about the studio and its offerings, please call!
